

This person is reading poetry for

*the
cooked & eaten*

Poetry of Everyday Life Marathon

April 18, 2008, 9 am to 9 pm - Coast to Coast

Today, across Canada, over 80 poets are standing up and reading their poetry aloud in celebration of Poetry Month. People are reading in Toronto, Nanaimo, London, Victoria, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Peterborough, Pittsburgh, PA and many places in between.

Poets are presenting themselves in bookstores and galleries, at bus stops, under trees in forests, in offices and right here in front of you.

As soon as this poet is finished, another poet will start reading somewhere else - every fifteen minutes. Poetry & Company in Kingston and Peterborough's branch of the Canadian Authors Assoc. are holding group marathons.

For a complete schedule go to www.cookedandateen.com.

While you are here, listening to this poet, and as you go about the rest of your day, take a moment to notice the poetry all around you. The poetry of everyday life. Today, poetry is being brought to life across the country. Tomorrow? It will still be there, perhaps more silent, but still there. Take time to look for it, when you can.

For now, enjoy the Cooked and Eaten International Poetry Month Twelve Hour Poetry Marathon.

www.cookedandateen.com

Facebook group "Poetry of Everyday Life Marathon"

This person is reading poetry for

*the
cooked & eaten*

Poetry of Everyday Life Marathon

April 18, 2008, 9 am to 9 pm - Coast to Coast

Today, across Canada, over 80 poets are standing up and reading their poetry aloud in celebration of Poetry Month. People are reading in Toronto, Nanaimo, London, Victoria, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Peterborough, Pittsburgh, PA and many places in between.

Poets are presenting themselves in bookstores and galleries, at bus stops, under trees in forests, in offices and right here in front of you.

As soon as this poet is finished, another poet will start reading somewhere else - every fifteen minutes. Poetry & Company in Kingston and Peterborough's branch of the Canadian Authors Assoc. are holding group marathons.

For a complete schedule go to www.cookedandateen.com.

While you are here, listening to this poet, and as you go about the rest of your day, take a moment to notice the poetry all around you. The poetry of everyday life. Today, poetry is being brought to life across the country. Tomorrow? It will still be there, perhaps more silent, but still there. Take time to look for it, when you can.

For now, enjoy the Cooked and Eaten International Poetry Month Twelve Hour Poetry Marathon.

www.cookedandateen.com

Facebook group "Poetry of Everyday Life Marathon"

This person is reading poetry for

*the
cooked & eaten*

Poetry of Everyday Life Marathon

April 18, 2008, 9 am to 9 pm - Coast to Coast

Today, across Canada, over 80 poets are standing up and reading their poetry aloud in celebration of Poetry Month. People are reading in Toronto, Nanaimo, London, Victoria, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Peterborough, Pittsburgh, PA and many places in between.

Poets are presenting themselves in bookstores and galleries, at bus stops, under trees in forests, in offices and right here in front of you.

As soon as this poet is finished, another poet will start reading somewhere else - every fifteen minutes. Poetry & Company in Kingston and Peterborough's branch of the Canadian Authors Assoc. are holding group marathons.

For a complete schedule go to www.cookedandateen.com.

While you are here, listening to this poet, and as you go about the rest of your day, take a moment to notice the poetry all around you. The poetry of everyday life. Today, poetry is being brought to life across the country. Tomorrow? It will still be there, perhaps more silent, but still there. Take time to look for it, when you can.

For now, enjoy the Cooked and Eaten International Poetry Month Twelve Hour Poetry Marathon.

www.cookedandateen.com

Facebook group "Poetry of Everyday Life Marathon"

This person is reading poetry for

*the
cooked & eaten*

Poetry of Everyday Life Marathon

April 18, 2008, 9 am to 9 pm - Coast to Coast

Today, across Canada, over 80 poets are standing up and reading their poetry aloud in celebration of Poetry Month. People are reading in Toronto, Nanaimo, London, Victoria, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Peterborough, Pittsburgh, PA and many places in between.

Poets are presenting themselves in bookstores and galleries, at bus stops, under trees in forests, in offices and right here in front of you.

As soon as this poet is finished, another poet will start reading somewhere else - every fifteen minutes. Poetry & Company in Kingston and Peterborough's branch of the Canadian Authors Assoc. are holding group marathons.

For a complete schedule go to www.cookedandateen.com.

While you are here, listening to this poet, and as you go about the rest of your day, take a moment to notice the poetry all around you. The poetry of everyday life. Today, poetry is being brought to life across the country. Tomorrow? It will still be there, perhaps more silent, but still there. Take time to look for it, when you can.

For now, enjoy the Cooked and Eaten International Poetry Month Twelve Hour Poetry Marathon.

www.cookedandateen.com

Facebook group "Poetry of Everyday Life Marathon"